

Recommitting to Lincoln's Vision: An Educational Compact for the 21st Century

In the twenty-first century, public research universities will require support from all sectors—a compact among state and federal governments, universities, businesses, and philanthropies to share responsibility for institutions critical to American education, research, culture, and competitiveness.

From Public Research Universities: Recommitting to Lincoln's Vision—An Educational Compact for the 21st Century
(American Academy of Arts & Sciences, 2016)